1. The shipyard at Rothensee is rushing work on two Volga passenger ships. They were to have been completed by the end of 1952, but this is unlikely. Twenty-six of these ships are planned for 1952 construction.
2. The Malz shipyard at Oranienburg uses pump parts of colored metal. In order to obtain deliveries, the yard has to promise in writing that these parts will be installed only in vessels intended for reparations delivery. They cannot be used in vessels in the German sector.
